A report by the UK Government's Department for Business, Energy & Industrial Strategy (BEIS) indicated that over 15,000 whistleblowing cases were raised with the Employment Tribunal between the last 5 working years.

According to the whistleblowing charity, Protect, 63% of whistleblowers report experiencing retaliation after making a disclosure.

The same report found that 41% of whistleblowers felt their concerns were ignored or not taken seriously by their employers.
